Dying Well Conference

Venue: 'Nunyarra' Conference Centre
5 Burnell Drive, Belair, South Australia

Nurses Association

We will all face death and living well until the end of life is something most people want to experience. A good death meets the dying person's physical, psychological, social and spiritual needs. Our failure to talk about and plan for death is one of the most significant obstacles to improving the quality of living at the end of life. Open discussions about dying can be difficult, so they are often ignored. This conference will inform you about many aspects of dying so that it becomes easier to have hopeful conversations and make plans that will assist people to die well. Keynote Speakers

Dr Lawrie Palmer has extensive experience in general practice both overseas and in South Australia. In 2003 he completed training in palliative medicine at The Queen Elizabeth Hospital. Since then he has worked as a specialist in palliative care, most recently being appointed the Medical Head of Unit – Palliative Care for the Northern Adelaide Palliative Service. He is also a Senior Clinical Lecturer at The University of Adelaide Medical School. He brings a wealth of knowledge to the discussion around the role of palliative care and dying well.

Russell Bartlett is trained as a teacher and after theological training, was the Pastor at Parkside Baptist Church in Adelaide for sixteen years. Russell has worked for the Baptist Churches of SA for the last 16 or so years in various roles including Pastor to Pastors, teaching in Burleigh College, Regional Minister, Accreditation and Formation Facilitator and Spiritual Director. Russell is also the Coordinator of the Graduate Diploma in Spiritual Direction at Tabor College, Adelaide. Now in its second year, the course has been enthusiastically received as a means of being formed for the ministry of spiritual direction.

Niki Vasilakis is a celebrated classical violinist and has enjoyed a career that spans the globe. Niki's most cherished opportunities have been amongst the world's remote and marginalised communities. It was through this involvement that Niki was recognised as 'Young South Australian of the Year.' Niki is a dynamic speaker whose faith is an integral part of her life and expression in music. Niki will share the story of her latest recording, SACRED with us. "...there is power in prayer-filled, faith-filled music... it has that same power today to be used by God to answer prayers, bring comfort and deep peace to those desperately needing an encounter".
